

- Contact Us
- Advertising Information
- Online exclusives
- Cover Story
- Buzz Feature
- In Case You Missed It
- Kids Camp Guide 2009
- Wedding Marketplace 09
- Legal Services
- Jobs available
- Student Guide 2008
- Best of Boulder 2008
- Annual Manual 2008
- Join Our Mailing List

CLICK NOW TO CHECK OUT THE
FAC CHALLENGE!

Elevation-Gear

February 19-25, 2009
buzz@boulderweekly.com

- Main Elevation story—Hut-to-hut heaven
- Upcoming Events

One mug, two temps

by Emilie Le Beau

Outdoor adventure — hiking, fishing, climbing — can be an experience of extremes. In a matter of months, adventurers deal with both the extreme cold and intense heat.

Devoted adventurers head out in all weather. They pick winter days when the wind is mild or summer mornings when the sun isn't too hot.

Purchasing gear for two types of weather can be expensive and unnecessary. There are items that can be used on both frigid and boiling days.

The Hybrid Mug from Revenge Is... ($18.95, available at RevengeIs.com) holds both hot and cold beverages, maintaining temperature for up to six hours. The mug is made with stainless steel and holds up to 14 ounces of liquid.

The Hybrid has a screw cap with a push button that allows sipping from every angle. It has a second safety cap to prevent spillage.

There is also a travel case so the mug can be packed until needed.

There is also a loose tea holder, which can be removed. The mug is BPA free and hand-wash only.

The design is simple with the Revenge Is... logo followed by the word "disposables" crossed out.
—MCT

Respond: letters@boulderweekly.com
back to top

Featured Articles

Westminister punk band Single File will not give up the fight

Hiding poverty in Boulder county

Something to agree on: conservation

Click to search for
Boulder real estate
Loveland real estate
Longmont real estate

Sweet Pavin' Sale
FASCINATIONS
SHOP & SAVE