December 2, 2009 · Leave a Comment

What do you get when you mix eco-friendly organic cotton with recycled PET fiber spun from plastic bottles?

Thanks to Revenge Is...®, you get some seriously soft and comfy t-shirts for men ($32), women ($32) and tots ($21).

Buy a blank shirt to keep your vengeful eco cred undercover, or go for a bold graphic design like my fave, the Earth Day t-shirt.

This woman appears to be calmly plotting her eco-revenge...

Usually I would resist spending more than $30 on a t-shirt, but I have to say that the quality and softness of these shirts – plus their eco-friendly materials of course – makes them appealing. I also respect the fact that they are made in the USA and seem built to survive numerous trips through the wash-dry cycle.

For more info on the eco-friendly shipping and manufacturing steps that Revenge Is... has taken for its shirts, check out this page.

With all due respect to George Herbert, English clergyman, who apparently originated the expression “Living well is the best revenge,” I think we need to update that sentiment to 21st Century standards and note that living Green may be an even better revenge.
