Stars Come Out for All Love is Equal Party

Wednesday night, I attended the All Love is Equal party for the Repeal Proposition 8 Campaign. Held at Kitson Melrose, the event was hosted by the lovely E! Host Giuliana Rancic who wore killer heels by Brian Atwood. Rancic was interested in hosting the event because she believes equality in marriage is a civil right and it was Perez Hilton who brought her attention to this issue with the Carrie Prejean incident. Even as a devout Catholic, Rancic believes "This is not that much to ask for, really. Who are we to decide?"

Many other stars attended to show their support for the issue like Missi Pyle, Hal Sparks,

Gregory Michael and me

Suzanne Whang, Claudia Jordan and Gregory Michael. Michael, who plays closeted gay Omega Chi member on the AbcFamily show Greek told me that he has really learned a lot about the gay community by being straight and playing a gay character on TV. He also slipped up and revealed to us that his character will finally come out of the closet next season.

Once inside, there was more than just shopping to be done. The night's events included appetizers from celeb hotspot Joan's on Third, signature signing, a fake wedding that was written and produced by

Ashley Terrill and photo booths where anyone could take wedding photos.

The must-have item of the night for attendees was the Revenge is... All Love is Equal t-shirt. If you live in LA, you can stop by your local Kitson store to pick one up and 25 percent of proceeds go to Love Honor and Cherish or online at Revenge is... Interested in getting involved further? Go to signforequality.com, a website that is dedicated to getting 1 million signatures in the next 145 days so a Prop 8 Repeal can be on the ballot.
